6 THE COURT: This is Judge Wolin. All right. Good 7 morning. The first thing I'd like to do is take appearances of 8 all persons that are participating in this phone call as opposed 9 to persons who are just listening and then I will ask for them to 1 MR. DiFILIPPO: Paul DiFilippo.

2 THE COURT: Yes, Mr. DiFilippo. And anybody else? I'll 3 go back to Mr. Gibbons.

4 MR. GIBBONS: Yes.

5 THE COURT: Okay. I'll list you now.

6 MR. GIBBONS: Fine.

7 THE COURT: Anybody else for the roll call? Okay. I now 8 want to move to what I'm going to term process and procedure for 9 this call. Because of the fact that by my listing there are nine 10 participants, not everybody can speak at once, so, here's the 11 procedure I'd like to follow. Whoever speaks shall speak as to 12 all of their objections that they raise in their entirety when 13 they are given their opportunity to speak.

14 The Court will provide each speaker a brief opportunity to 15 reply after all participants have had an opportunity to speak.
16 Now, I don't really care who goes first and the reason that I'm 17 giving a reply is that I anticipate that someone may say, well, 18 if I go first, you know, then everybody else has an opportunity 19 to feed off me; therefore, I'll give you the opportunity to 20 reply.

21 As to the request as of yesterday, the Court will make 22 available to parties for inspection, we're not going to produce 23 them but for inspection, the court's official minutes that were 24 filed for calendar year 2001, 2002, and 2003, and you'll have to 25 contact Gail Hansen, who is my deputy court clerk, who will make

1 those minutes available to you. Does anybody have any question 2 about that?

3 MR. BERNICK: Yes, I do, your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Yes, Mr. Bernick.

5 MR. BERNICK: Those minutes, do they relate -- which of 6 the cases do they relate to and do they relate to cases other 7 than the five cases?

8 THE COURT: They only relate to the five cases that are 9 under consideration here. Okay. And after I have had the 10 opportunity to hear from everyone, I am prepared to rule today on 11 the discovery requests and, thereafter, the rulings will be 12 contained in a Court Order to be issued by the Court today.

13 I would ask that Saul Ewing take it upon themselves to 14 distribute the Case Management Order that will be issued by the 15 Court. Can we do that, Mr. Monk?

16 MR. MONK: Your Honor, we'll be happy to do that.

17 THE COURT: All right. I would like to start with the 18 movants' submission of requests for documents and then I will go 19 to the requests for submission of documents by Saul Ewing, 20 because that is the way that they were received by the Court.

21 Now, the pages that came through on the fax have numbers
22 beyond one, two, three and four, you know. I think I received 23 from the movants' submissions 29 pages, some 29 pages, but as you 24 go through them, they don't work that way, so, I don't know if 25 you have them listed one through 29 or you have them one, two,

1 three, four in each category. I will try to identify the pages
2 in both manners so that you can follow. Everybody understand?

3 SPEAKERS: Yes.

4 THE COURT: Okay. I want to go to the first page of the 5 movants' submission for request of documents. Everybody ready?

6 SPEAKERS: Yeah.

7 THE COURT: Okay. Going over to page two -- I'm sorry.
8 If there was a delay, it was that we delayed it and put you on 9 hold for a moment. I want to go over to page three and I guess I 10 want to start with the bottom of page two, wherein I believe that 11 there is a concern about the deposition schedule that was 12 announced by the Court and contained in its Case Management 13 Order.

14 There was no rhyme or reason as to the dates that were 15 picked and the Court relied upon the statement of Mr. Orseck 16 wherein he indicated that the Court need not be concerned about 17 multiple tracks, that it could be covered, and we relied upon 18 that in ordering these depositions.

19 Now, at the time that we ordered these depositions on 20 particular dates, we had not spoken to any of the individuals to 21 be deposed. For example, I do not know where Keefe, Dreier, 22 Hamlin and Gross are on January 5th, or McGovern. I was 23 surprised to learn today that McGovern is out of the country and 24 would not have known that but for the submissions saying that 25 he'll be out of the country until January 9, but I am satisfied

1 that if we keep to a deposition schedule on the fifth and sixth, 2 and if McGovern is one of those people that would be deposed on 3 the fifth and the sixth, he will just have to return from 4 wherever he is out of the country. In other words, there are no
5 sacred cows in the taking of these depositions.

6 Now, you've said that it's a lot to take Keefe, Dreier,
7 Hamlin and Gross on January 5th. I'm willing to alter that. I
8 put Hamlin and Gross down with Keefe and Dreier because I 9 anticipate that you're not going to spend a lot of time with 10 Keefe and Dreier in particular and far more time with Hamlin and 11 Gross.

12 Now, if I'm wrong in my assumption, then we'll reschedule
13 them. You want to put Hamlin on one day and Gross on another 14 day, you want to move Brodsky up or Eckstein and Case with Keefe 15 and Dreier, that's fine by me. I'm willing to adjust that 16 deposition schedule within reason. But I did rely upon the 17 statement made that everybody has the manpower to handle this.
18 And the reason that I put depositions on the fifth and the sixth, 19 so that necessarily if we could avoid multi-tracking depositions, 20 that would be preferable. If we can't, then we'll multi-track.

21 So, I guess, Mr. Orseck, I'm addressing you first on that 22 issue because you're the one that raised it.

23 MR. ORSECK: Yes. Thank you, your Honor. I did say that 24 we will cover the depositions whenever scheduled. Of course, 25 when I made that representation, it was not proposed by either

1 side that all of the depositions would be taken in a two-day
2 period, allowing probably no more than two hours for each one.
3 We thought that the depositions, and I think the other side did 4 as well, would take at least a half a day or more each.

5 Having said that, your Honor, I would like to be able to 6 reserve on the question, on this call of moving Mr. Gross or Mr.
7 Hamlin because, as you pointed out, your Honor, none of us knows 8 when either one or when anyone else who's been listed here is 9 available and, therefore, I think it probably makes more sense 10 for us to contact those individuals and find out when each one 11 can be deposed.

12 But I would repeat that without the need for any double 13 tracking or triple tracking, we could certainly spread these out 14 over a somewhat longer period which would allow all the parties 15 the safety valve of some additional time and will also build in 16 some time for the depositions to allow the Court to rule 17 contemporaneously on any objections that are raised, because 18 under the current schedule, as soon as that occurs, we are likely 19 to eat into substantial time that has been allotted for these 20 depositions.

21 So, I guess our response, your Honor, is that while, of 22 course, we will cover any depositions at any time, our lead 23 counsel is absolutely unavailable either of those days and in 24 order to accommodate that schedule, while allowing for a bit 25 more time if necessary for each deposition, we would propose

1 setting forth some additional days for them and in either event,
2 your Honor, we will take it upon ourselves to contact the people
3 whose depositions we are seeking and we can, I suppose, agree 4 with the other side to move particular deponents from one day to 5 another if that works out to everyone's convenience.

6 MR. BERNICK: Your Honor, this is David Bernick for Grace.
7 I would strenuously object to that. It seems to me, number one,
8 that when it comes to finding out the schedules for the advisers, 9 that that ought to be done in a conference call that can be very 10 simply set up with the advisers where all counsel can participate 11 rather than having this thing take place through several filters, 12 and the simple question is their availability during the days on 13 the fifth and sixth and if they have an excuse for why they can't 14 be available, they could take that up with the Court.

15 This schedule is inconvenient for absolutely everybody but 16 all the inconvenience that's really of relevance here is the 17 convenience of the Court of Appeals. Your Honor very carefully 18 set a schedule yesterday which contemplates the discovery gets 19 done within a certain period of time so that there can be a 20 hearing and the Court can rule, and what's now being requested of 21 you is that you basically extend the discovery schedule, 22 deposition schedule in particular, and that will clearly 23 jeopardize the overall flow that you established yesterday.

24 It seems to me that what the Court has proposed is 25 definitely reasonable, which is that everybody has got to show up

1 and the only question is whether you want -- whether folks want
2 to shift the order of witnesses either to accommodate their own 3 concerns or to accommodate the witness, but if this is an effort 4 to revisit the overall schedule, I think that that should be 5 rejected because we don't have time to revisit the overall 6 schedule.

7 With respect to the convenience of Mr. Robbins, Mr.
8 Robbins, to my knowledge, hasn't participated in anything to 9 date. He didn't participate in the Court of Appeals argument, he 10 didn't participate in the hearing that took place yesterday. I 11 don't here him chiming in on the phone today. Maybe he's there, 12 but Mr. Robbins is one person and Mr. Englert has handled things, 13 Mr. Orseck has handled things, and there could be nothing more 14 explicit yesterday than the representation that they would do 15 whatever was necessary. They can get counsel. They can act.
16 They're big boys. And it doesn't seem to me that we ought to be 17 accommodating Mr. Robbins' schedule.

18 MR. ORSECK: Your Honor, this is Gary Orseck again. If I 19 may respond for one moment.

20 THE COURT: Mr. Orseck, let's see if any other participant 21 wants to respond. Then I'll give you an opportunity to reply.

22 MR. ORSECK: Thank you.

23 THE COURT: Does any other participant want to be heard on 24 the issue that I raised?

25 MR. INSELBUCH: I agree with what Mr. Bernick just said.

1 THE COURT: All right. Anybody else before Mr. Orseck?

2 MS. PARVER: Your Honor, it's Jane Parver for the futures
3 rep. We agree as well with what Mr. Bernick said.

4 THE COURT: All right. Anybody else before Mr. Orseck?
5 All right, Mr. Orseck, and before you respond, Mr. Orseck, I want 6 to add one thing, too. If you look at the paragraph that 7 followed the designations of depositions, the Court listened to 8 you yesterday when you said, well, you know, how do we know what 9 may come out of the depositions, so, therefore, I left the 10 seventh for people to reflect and on the eighth to convene a 11 conference before the Court to listen to counsel in the event 12 they were to be able to point to something that arose out of the 13 depositions on the fifth and sixth in order to consider 14 additional depositions if necessary.

15 If we're to change the fifth and the sixth, then that date 16 on the eighth may no longer be available or further depositions, 17 if ordered, may be in a greater compressed time period. So, 18 there was an overall time period for getting this accomplished
19 with it ultimately being accomplished by January 16, so the Court 20 could then reflect on all of the discovery, all the depositions, 21 and be able to render an opinion as directed by the Court of 22 Appeals. Now I'll hear you, Mr. Orseck.

23 MR. ORSECK: Yes. Thank you, your Honor. The two dates 24 that you've mentioned are January 8th, at which time the Court is 25 to consider whether additional depositions are required, and then

1 oral argument on January 16.

2 THE COURT: That's correct.

3 MR. ORSECK: I think without any need to threaten our 4 ability to meet and the Court's ability to meet the January 31st 5 deadline, an accommodation of moving these dates back by perhaps 6 two days each should not threaten the ability to get all of this 7 accomplished by the end of the month.

8 It is not the case that I am raising the convenience of a 9 particular individual. It's Christmas and it's New Year's for 10 everyone and we all understand that. What I am saying is that 11 Mr. Robbins, who was hired by the movant Kensington and 12 Springfield, as lead counsel and who is expected to defend Mr.
13 Brodsky's deposition, has an oral argument in the Court of 14 Appeals in Washington on the sixth. It is literally impossible 15 for him to do both of those things at once.

16 THE COURT: Well, maybe he should consider adjourning the 17 argument before the Court of Appeals just like I'm considering 18 adjourning some trials that I have in January so that I can 19 concentrate on this.

20 MR. ORSECK: I have not raised with the Court of Appeals 21 or with Mr. Robbins, who happens to be out of the country at the 22 moment, whether that oral argument can be moved, but I certainly 23 tend to doubt it. But my only point here is without threatening 24 the schedule and the intervals in between the times and the dates 25 that the Court had set, Mr. Robbins' schedule could be

1 accommodated, number one, and number two, these depositions could 2 certainly be spread out among -- over a greater period of time as 3 both the movants and the respondents have proposed, which would 4 allow for, number one, the discovery I think the Court of Appeals 5 envisioned the parties to be entitled to and, number two, to 6 allow the Court contemporaneously on objections. That's my 7 response to Mr. Bernick.

8 THE COURT: All right. Anybody else wish to be heard?

9 MR. NEAL: Your Honor, Stephen Neal. I don't have 10 anything I want to say with respect to the scheduling of the 11 depositions. I am concerned that if the Court's intention is 12 that these, in fact, be restricted to effectively a couple of 13 hours per deponent, that that may turn out to be insufficient
14 time, and I know your Honor suggested that it may be that we use 15 less than two hours for a couple.

16 THE COURT: Mr. Neal, you never heard me restrict anybody 17 to any period of deposition. We'll go by the federal rule. It's 18 a maximum of seven hours for any deponent. All I said was I 19 doubt that you'd want to depose some people beyond two hours.
20 Gross and Hamlin you may want to depose for seven hours. I don't 21 know.

22 So, Mr. Neal, your objection, if it's an objection, is not 23 well-taken.

24 MR. NEAL: It's not an objection, your Honor. That 25 clarification is very helpful.

1 THE COURT: Okay. I always want to help. I am very 2 disinclined to move the schedule that the Court set out. It's 3 part of an overall scheme that lends itself to all the other 4 matters that the Court designed for the disposition of this 5 matter.

6 Secondly, I think it's in keeping with the spirit and the 7 letter of the Court of Appeals and I'm not so sure that all the 8 document production that everybody seeks here, everybody all 9 inclusive, is within the letter and spirit of the Circuit Court 10 of Appeals, but we'll cope with that later.

11 I have no objection to revisiting between the parties on a 12 voluntary basis who shall be deposed on January 5th or January 13 6th. This Court will not limit the discovery on those days to 14 the court day of eight hours. If you want to say here till 10:00 15 at night and depose someone, that's fine with the Court. The 16 Court will be here.

17 Also, it is not my purpose to argue with some Court of 18 Appeals somewhere as to someone's argument. That's between that 19 individual and that Court of Appeals. I don't know when -- 20 obviously, this person who you mentioned before who has such an 21 important argument with the Court of Appeals seems to be out of 22 the country, when potentially they could be preparing for their 23 argument before the Court of Appeals.

24 My schedule as to January 5th and January 6th for the 25 taking of depositions shall remain. If parties want to 1 interchange who will go on the fifth and who will go on the 2 sixth, I'm certainly amenable to that and I'm going to give you 3 until Monday, the 29th, to advise the Court at 10:00 whether the 4 schedule is changed on a voluntary basis. If not, then the 5 schedule shall remain.

6 MR. ORSECK: Your Honor, this is Gary Orseck again. I'm 7 afraid that we, on our own, are unable at this point to contact
8 Mr. McGovern or to force him to return here, and this may be more 9 of a housekeeping matter than anything else, but if the Court is 10 to issue an order at the conclusion of this call, I wonder if it 11 might be appropriate to make some provision for directing Mr.
12 McGovern's presence for his deposition.

13 MR. BERNICK: This is David Bernick. I'm relatively 14 confident, based upon not only mine but other people's dealings
15 with Professor McGovern in the context of these cases, that it 16 will not be difficult to communicate to him the importance of his 17 showing up and I don't know that we have to have court orders to 18 accomplish what I think will be accomplishable readily without 19 the need for court orders.

20 THE COURT: Mr. Orseck, who do you want to contact Mr.
21 McGovern? Do you want the Court's clerk to reach out for him, 22 you want to reach out for him, you want Mr. Bernick to reach out 23 for him? I don't want to engage in anything that you're going to 24 say is, by the way, ex parte if I reach out for McGovern.

25 MR. ORSECK: Your Honor, I frankly wouldn't even know how

1 to reach out for Professor McGovern. Certainly if -- I think Mr.
2 Bernick can contact him, if he'd be willing to do so, and talk 3 about whether his deposition should be on the fifth or the sixth.

4 MR. BERNICK: A proposal maybe in the spirit of trying to 5 get this done on a cooperative basis among the parties, it really 6 does seem to me that the most effective way in which to 7 coordinate these deposition schedules so that we don't have to 8 come back to Judge Wolin is for the movants to caucus among 9 themselves about who it is that they want to take and for what 10 periods of time, and the same thing for the respondents, and that 11 we schedule a conference call with the advisers prepared to talk 12 about their schedules at some point in the next few days, and 13 that each side be prepared to make a proposal on how long they 14 want to go with each witness and on which day, see if we can work 15 it out.

16 I think if we don't have that call, we're all going to 17 waste a tremendous amount of time getting the logistics of this 18 thing straight and all that's going to happen is we're going to 19 get back to the Court with what will be a very frustrating 20 unproductive call. I think it would be a waste of time when we 21 could have resolved these logistical matters amongst ourselves.

22 MR. ORSECK: This is Gary Orseck and that sounds fine to 23 me.

24 THE COURT: All right. And when is that call to take 25 place, Mr. Bernick?

1 MR. BERNICK: Well, I guess it's -- we will undertake -- I 2 mean, it seems to me that the first thing is people have to make 3 up their minds how much time they need and in light of the press
4 of time and people's schedules, we will undertake to set up a 5 conference call on Friday of this week in the afternoon, and or 6 if the Saul Ewing people can do it because they've got 7 everybody's telephone number, that would be even better, but 8 Friday afternoon seems to be reasonable, and in the meantime, it 9 also seems to me that somebody's got to reach out to each one of 10 the advisers to let them know that they really ought to 11 participate in that call if they care about their schedules, and 12 I can contact Mr. McGovern, I think I've got his telephone 13 numbers where he might be, and if somebody else will reach out to 14 the others, we can get it done.

15 MR. MONK: Your Honor, this is Charles Monk. I believe 16 Mr. Gross's counsel is on the line. Is that correct?

17 MR. GOLDSTEIN: That's correct.

18 MR. MONK: So, presumably we've communicated with him by 19 virtue of this call. We will set up a conference call for 3:00
20 on Friday, the 26th, among all parties, to discuss the scheduling 21 of the advisers' depositions.

22 THE COURT: And I take it that on Monday, the 29th, at 23 10:00, a conference call will be made to the Court or you may 24 designate someone to call the Court and to give the Court the 25 schedule.

1 MR. MONK: Yes, your Honor, if that's how you'd like us to 2 do it.

3 MR. BERNICK: Can I ask counsel for Mr. Gross also to 4 contact the other advisers excepting Francis, whom I'll contact 5 to let him know about the call.

6 MR. GOLDSTEIN: I'm not sure that we can communicate with 7 them and I don't frankly think that is something we should be 8 undertaking. There are counsel and we suggest whoever you want 9 to depose apart from Mr. Gross, that you communicate with them 10 directly.

11 MR. BERNICK: I don't want to depose anybody but --

12 MR. GOLDSTEIN: Whoever the parties want to depose.

13 MR. BERNICK: Does somebody else want to call? I don't 14 want to sit there and call everybody. Does somebody else want to 15 volunteer to call some of the others?

16 MR. MONK: Your Honor, this is Charles Monk. We will 17 contact the other advisers.

18 THE COURT: Keefe and Dreier and Hamlin are in the Lawyers
19 Diary. They shouldn't be difficult to find.

20 MR. MONK: Thank you, your Honor.

21 THE COURT: You're welcome. All right. Let's move on to 22 the next matter; that is, that I would like to hear parties' 23 statements or objections as to the demand for production of 24 documents that have been filed and if nobody is a volunteer, then 25 I will --

1 MR. BERNICK: I'll volunteer, your Honor, and I do so
2 because I think that one of the difficulties in going through 3 this is that we're going to be revisiting a lot of the same 4 issues again and again because they crop up again and again, and 5 I think that there's some basic parameters that would constitute 6 core objections to be made that apply pretty much across the 7 board, and I've tried to think of it that way as well as focusing 8 on the particular requests that are directed at my client and at 9 my firm and myself.

10 It seems to me that they basically fall into three major 11 categories. There are, first of all, objections that are based 12 upon the fact that as currently styled, these requests will 13 potentially affect the rights of people who are not even before 14 the Court and, therefore, pose basic constitutional problems of 15 due process when compliance with the rules.

16 To the extent that these requests go beyond the five cases 17 that are before the Court, they most certainly do affect the 18 rights of people who are not before the Court. There's obviously 19 been a concerted effort here to use the excuse of this motion for 20 recusal to reach out to specific -- and the excuse of posing 21 discovery to counsel to reach out and potentially affect the 22 rights of people who are involved in the Combustion Engineering 23 case, people who are involved in the T-1 Holdings case. None of 24 those people are before the Court.

25 In the case of Combustion Engineering, I'm very familiar

1 with that because, as you know, I'm counsel to some of the plan
2 proponents of that case. That's a case where there's actually 3 already a confirmed plan and, in light of that, you would have 4 to, if you wanted to effect anything to do with that case, the 5 Court -- which is now on appeal before the Third Circuit, there 6 would be enormous problems, they have jurisdiction; B, of giving 7 notice to each of tens of thousands of claimants who now have a 8 direct stake in the outcome of that case, and that the effort to 9 reach out to that case, and likewise G-1 Holdings, is clearly 10 improper and violates basic precepts of notice of due process, 11 and it seems to me that requests that relate to those cases ought 12 to be rejected out of hand.

13 The second category are problems of relevance. It seems 14 to me that in dealing with relevance, we have to come back to the 15 discussion that took place yesterday, which seems to me to be 16 wholly -- has been wholly ignored by the people who put together
17 these discovery requests. Nothing could have been clearer
18 yesterday from the Court that we have a limited period of time, 19 that the focus should be not simply irrelevant information but 20 specifically highly relevant information, yet, in casting these 21 discovery requests, the proponents have -- the movants have 22 clearly retreated back to the same approach that we saw 23 yesterday, which is to make a record at the expense of trying to 24 figure out an answer to what the Court of Appeals has now 25 required, which is to actually find the relevant evidence. This

1 is just more of the same. There's no improvement.

2 And what's more, therefore, in order to try to cut through 3 the paperwork and come up with a reasonable proposal about how to 4 get this job done, it's important to articulate what the Court of 5 Appeals has focused on. It seems to me that there are two 6 principal areas where there could be relevant evidence.

7 Area one is the roles that were actually played by the 8 advisers, because the roles that were actually played by the 9 advisers is germane to the issue of whether there is a conflict 10 to begin with.

11 Again, if there is no conflict and these people have not 12 been given work to do that gives rise to a conflict with their 13 other engagements in G-1, the whole predicate for the motion
14 that's been filed by Owens Corning -- or in the Owens Corning 15 case and the Grace case disappears and, therefore, discovery that 16 relates to what the advisers actually did is relevant discovery, 17 but more particularly, your Honor, it ought to be discovery
18 relating to what Gross and Hamlin did because they are the ones 19 that are alleged to have the conflict. There's been no allegation 20 of conflict that pertains to any of the other advisers.

21 So, the discovery regarding roles played should relate to 22 Hamlin and Gross and, in particular, should focus on whether they 23 have engaged in activities that pertain to the interests of 24 future claimants because those are the folks where the conflicts 25 is alleged to have arisen.

1 If they engaged in other activities, such as mediating
2 issues in one of the cases or advising the Court with respect to 3 fraudulent conveyance principles, that is of absolutely no 4 relevance at all to the key issue of whether there's a conflict.
5 We've heard a lot of argument about how the roles played have 6 been very broad given the broad ambit of the notice that your 7 Honor provided. We've seen no evidence that's actually been 8 produced regarding the roles that were actually played. That was 9 the reason why Grace suggested that they engage the record -- the 10 movants engage the record on that subject, and that now is their 11 opportunity. They have the opportunity to develop a factual 12 record on whether the G-1 engagement was really relevant and 13 created a conflict of interest.

14 The second area of discovery is ex parte contacts and,
15 again, with respect to the Owens Corning movants and the Grace 16 movants, nothing could be clearer in their papers but that they 17 were not taking on the ex parte process itself but simply saying 18 that by virtue of the ex parte process, the conflict that they 19 were focusing on and was the predicate of their motion, that that 20 conflict ended up having particular impact.

21 USG is in a different situation and USG apparently is 22 willing to waive whatever rights they might have with respect to 23 ex parte contacts. I'm not going to address USG's situation in 24 their particular case but what I would say is when it comes to ex 25 parte contacts affecting all of the other cases, that the focus

1 again should be on ex parte contacts that are germane to the 2 alleged conflict of interest and, therefore, the focus should be 3 not on ex parte contacts between other parties and the Court.

4 Those were, as the Court has indicated, innumerable and 5 pertain to many, many different features of this case. Those ex
6 parte contacts are protectable because they involve work product 7 that could have been shared with the Court, they involve 8 confidential information that could have been shared with the 9 Court, they involved settlement matters that could have been 10 shared with the Court. There are all kinds of privilege issues 11 associated with that and none of that is relevant. Lots of 12 different people had ex parte contacts with the Court.

13 The real issue with respect to ex parte contacts is 14 whether Messrs. Gross and Hamlin had ex parte contacts with the 15 Court pertaining to future claimants, because it is that subject 16 matter again which gives rise to the claim that there's a 17 conflict of interest. So, when we go to ex parte contacts, the 18 only relevant ex parte contacts are contacts between the advisers 19 and the Court with respect to matters that are alleged to be 20 affected by conflict.

21 The third major source that my client, my firm would 22 object to all discovery requests that either implicate parties of 23 interest and parties that are of interest in these matters that 24 are not before the Court. We would also object on relevance 25 grounds because it seems to us, and we can demonstrate this in

1 detail in connection with requests that are made of Grace and of 2 Kirkland & Ellis, that these requests are grossly overbroad and 3 do not pertain to the relevant subject matters that are keyed up 4 by the issues before the Third Circuit.

5 And then the third source of objections which we will also 6 make is that most of these requests seek privileged information.
7 We have privileges that apply, including work product privileges, 8 attorney-client privileges. There's been no showing that 9 specified need to waive to override those privileges and, 10 therefore, we would object to their press on grounds of 11 privilege, those privileges in particular, and that another part 12 of the privilege issue is that these discussions, these documents 13 also relate to the settlement process, and the Third Circuit has 14 reasonably held that settlement discussions are not only 15 inadmissible under the rules but they're also nondiscoverable.
16 We would invoke precisely that principle and object to any 17 request that elicits information that pertains to settlement in 18 any way, shape or form.

19 So those are our three sources of objections with respect
20 to the discovery that has been propounded and, again, I'm 21 prepared to go through the Grace requests in particular if the 22 Court believes that would be appropriate.

23 THE COURT: All right. Maybe what we should do is rotate 24 between movants and respondents so that all the respondents don't 25 go first and all the movants go first, so, maybe, Mr. Orseck, we 1 should hear from you next.

2 MR. ORSECK: Thank you, your Honor. I will respond to 3 those sections.

4 THE COURT: And by the way, Mr. Inselbuch, you're on deck.

5 MR. INSELBUCH: Thank you.

6 THE COURT: Go ahead, Mr. Orseck.

7 MR. ORSECK: To begin with, your Honor, we have vastly 8 narrowed down the document requests from the ones that were 9 circulated on Monday. The ones that remain we think are targeted 10 as specifically as can possibly be done with the materials that 11 are most --

12 THE COURT: Can I make an inquiry of you?

13 MR. ORSECK: Yes, sir.

14 THE COURT: In this document is reference to Combustion
15 Engineering. My review of the Circuit Court of Appeals' argument 16 indicates that when I believe Mr. Englert raised Combustion 17 Engineering, the Circuit Court of Appeals shut it down 18 immediately.

19 MR. ORSECK: I don't believe that's correct, your Honor.

20 THE COURT: What's incorrect about it?

21 MR. ENGLERT: Your Honor, this is Roy Englert, if I may.
22 When I raised Combustion Engineering, Mr. Bernick took the 23 extraordinarily unusual step in the Court of Appeals in standing 24 up to object and Judge Fuentes' response was we're not going to 25 have that, I believe was we were not going to have objections

1 during counsel's argument to a Court of Appeals, not we're not 2 going to have discussion of Combustion Engineering --

3 THE COURT: Well, I'm not sure.

4 MR. ENGLERT: -- though tempering my remarks after Mr.
5 Bernick's objection, and there was nothing said by the judges of 6 the Court of Appeals to suggest that I should not be discussing 7 that.

8 MR. BERNICK: Your Honor, also, the transcript was not 9 well transcribed and my own observation would be that actually 10 the extraordinary thing about that whole process was that Mr.
11 Englert would seek to argue to the Third Circuit, which now has 12 the Combustion Engineering case on appeal, anything relating to 13 that case, even though that case was not noticed up for anything 14 in connection with the pending matter, that the different 15 proponents and interested parties in the Combustion Engineering 16 case were not before the very same court that is hearing that 17 case absolutely outrageous, and their attempt here is no less 18 outrageous. It's the same outrage, and what happened was that I 19 had no choice but to stand and object because they're talking to 20 the same Court.

21 Judge Garth did say we will have no more of that. I don't 22 know whether he was referring to my objection or to Mr. Englert's 23 argument, but what was very clear is that Mr. Englert thought he 24 was referring to his own argument because he then hastened to go 25 through it, and if you take a look at the language he used, he's 1 recognizing he doesn't want to spend very much time on it because 2 he knows he's not supposed to be doing it.

3 MR. ENGLERT: Your Honor, I just simply register for the 4 record my strong disagreement with Mr. Bernick. I won't 5 elaborate. Thank you.

6 THE COURT: Fine. Mr. Orseck, let's continue on.

7 MR. ORSECK: Yeah. The first objection that was raised by 8 Mr. Bernick I think attempts to eliminate Rule 45 from the 9 federal rules. Mr. Bernick suggests that it is inappropriate, in 10 fact, unconstitutional to seek discovery from parties who are not 11 before the Court, but I think, more particularly, he's suggesting 12 that we ought not to be able to take discovery with respect to 13 matters that are not before the Court.

14 We are not going after the thousands of claimants in other 15 cases. This case puts directly at issue the dual roles of the 16 advisers in one case and their service as futures representatives
17 in another case. There is simply no way to get at that issue
18 without seeking documents and asking questions in a deposition 19 that refer at least to that other matter. That's number one.

20 MR. BERNICK: Your Honor, if I may, just because I don't 21 think Mr. Inselbuch, maybe he can address that, but just to be 22 clear, if you're following the rules for the issuance of, for 23 taking discovery, you have to provide notice, and what's not -- 24 the notice that's not been given here is the notice to all the 25 other people that are involved in the case.

1 It's not a question of whether you can't or you're 2 precluded from conducting discovery. It's the process that you 3 have to follow, and they are most certainly attempting to affect 4 the rights of thousands of claimants because those claimants 5 voted in favor of the plan that's now before the Court of 6 Appeals. You know, in the bankruptcy world, you've got to give 7 notice to the people who are claimants because they have an 8 interest in the matter.

9 The Combustion Engineering case was not subject to the 10 system of advisers that have been supplied in these cases. As 11 your Honor well knows, that case came to your Honor outside of 12 the confines of the five consolidated cases. It came on for 13 confirmation after Judge Fitzgerald heard all the evidence and 14 held the confirmation hearing and that case is definitely not at 15 issue with any of the motions that have been filed before the 16 Court of Appeals and there's nothing about the Court of Appeals' 17 Opinion that implicates it, so, I am most certainly raising a due 18 process argument because no effort has been undertaken to notify 19 the interested parties either in Combustion Engineering or in G-1 20 Holdings.

21 THE COURT: All right. Excuse me. Mr. Bernick, now 22 you're violating the process.

23 MR. BERNICK: I'm sorry, your Honor.

24 THE COURT: And I'm going to give all participants an 25 opportunity to reply. If we keep having this type of colloquy,

1 we may not finish before midnight. So, I'd like to let Mr.
2 Orseck continue uninterrupted. Let him say or argue whatever he 3 chooses and then we'll keep moving down the line and then I'll 4 come back and give the participants a brief opportunity to reply.

5 Mr. Orseck, you may continue.

6 MR. ORSECK: Thank you, your Honor. Just to follow up on 7 that single point, we are seeking facts with these document 8 requests. There is no attempt and there is no conceivable way in 9 which our attempts to take discovery affects the rights of 10 parties who are not before the Court. That is simply a red 11 herring. We are simply taking discovery.

12 Mr. Bernick's objections on the grounds of the 13 constitution or relevance or civil procedure are completely -- 14 are completely unfounded.

15 The second objection he made was, Mr. Bernick attempted to 16 post the relevant subject matter here to the activities of 17 Messrs. Gross and Hamlin. For purposes of his objection, I'm 18 going to assume that he's right, that that is the only relevant 19 subject matter before the Court. Of course, we disagree with 20 that but the fact of the matter is there is no rule that I'm 21 aware of that restricts a party's ability in discovery with 22 respect to one issue that a party must be prohibited from taking 23 discovery from other parties to determine what parties A and B
24 did. We are certainly able to take discovery from other parties 25 for that purpose. That's precisely where our document requests

1 are directed.

2 Number two, the premise is wrong. We have raised in this 3 proceeding, in fact, we have raised in the recusal motion that 4 was originally presented to the Court footnote seven on page nine 5 raises the conflict problems surrounding Professor McGovern and 6 Mr. Keefe as well. Those matters are before the Court. We have 7 raised them and we are entitled to discovery from those 8 individuals with respect to their conflicts and also with respect 9 to the conflict by Messrs. Gross and Hamlin. So, there is simply 10 no basis for any attempt to restrict discovery from the start to 11 only the two advisers.

12 I am going to, your Honor, ask Mr. Neal to address the 13 objections regarding the discovery requests for ex parte 14 information but before I pass that along, I want to assure the 15 Court of this. We are not demanding the production of privileged 16 information. We are confident that the respondents of this 17 motion are not going to produce to us privileged information.

18 We are seeking relevant non-privileged information as the 19 Third Circuit has directed. In fact, your Honor, we had a call 20 earlier this morning to try to work out some issues between the 21 parties and the one specific objection that was raised by the 22 other side to a particular document request resulted in our side 23 quickly caucusing and agreeing that that request could be 24 dropped, which we have done and which I have informed the other 25 side about. So, the notion that our requests, number one, are

1 grossly overbroad, that they are unconstitutional and that this 2 is an attempt, as Mr. Bernick suggests, to use a discovery 3 process as an excuse to go after other materials that are not 4 relevant is absolutely, absolutely baseless.

5 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Orseck, only one modification
6 to that. This Court, in relation to its court-appointed 7 advisers, has waived its judicial privilege as to confidence.

8 MR. ORSECK: I understand.

9 THE COURT: And the record should so reflect that.

10 MR. ORSECK: Thank you, your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Neal. Or Mr. Neal, if you want to 12 reserve until Mr. Inselbuch so we can do my rotation.

13 MR. NEAL: Your Honor, which ever way you proceed, that's 14 fine with me, because I don't think Mr. Bernick actually sort of 15 addressed the USG-related issues and if Mr. Inselbuch intends to 16 do that, then I think your procedure probably is the more 17 sensible way to go, but I'll do whatever you want.

18 THE COURT: I'll hear from Mr. Inselbuch, then I'll hear 19 from Mr. Neal on deck.

20 MR. INSELBUCH: Thank you, your Honor. Elihu Inselbuch.
21 I have very little to add to what was said yesterday in court or 22 to what David Bernick added today because when I took a look at 23 what was served out this morning and compared it with what was 24 served out yesterday, although I hadn't seen it when I was in 25 court yesterday, it's identical. The material that you quashed

1 yesterday has been put up once again, and for all the reasons we 2 argued yesterday, it is so far beyond the scope of what anyone
3 could have envisioned would be done here in the limited time 4 frame as to be so objectionable as to not even be worth arguing 5 about.

6 For example, I told you yesterday that we have 72 linear 7 feet of file materials and that most of those file materials, in 8 fact, almost everything in there will be subject to either 9 attorney-client or work product or both privileges.

10 Now, their first request for production yesterday read all 11 documents that constitute, reflect or refer to communications
12 between you and Judge Wolin, and they went on to say yesterday 13 any pleadings served on all parties in the applicable case may be 14 excluded.

15 Now, they dropped that sentence in today's request, so, 16 presumably we would have to go through the file and find any 17 piece of paper that referred to anything that had to do with 18 anything that went on that in any way touched the Court, and we 19 would then have to go through all of those materials and see and 20 make privilege logs out of 72 feet of material to see whether or 21 not there was anything in there unprivileged to produce, and what 22 would be learned from any of that? What would advance the ball 23 if you look at what the Court of Appeals wanted to know by way of 24 discovery?

25 The Court of Appeals said they wanted discovery to shed

1 light on the full extent of the consultants' activities in the 2 five asbestos cases. The five consultants have filed their time 3 records, they filed their statements and your Honor has said they 4 should be available to be deposed. Well, let them be deposed and 5 if, within the context, within the context of the time period
6 that we have available to us, the full extent of their activities 7 certainly can include day-by-day document-by-document examination 8 of everything that they did but, rather, a broad description 9 adviser-by-adviser case-by-case of the activities they were 10 involved in, what their relationships with the parties in those 11 cases were, what their relationships with the Court were.

12 The next document request, identical to what you quashed
13 yesterday, reads all documents that reflect, refer to or concern 14 any meetings, including without limitation, any conferences 15 between you and Judge Wolin. This isn't even restricted to 16 attempt to see whether or not counsel or any of these other 17 individual counsel were alone with Judge Wolin or alone with his 18 advisers. In theory, this would call for any document reporting 19 on any conference that had to do with Judge Wolin whether in open 20 court or in chambers with many people present, in your Honor's 21 jury room where we often meet with all the parties and, again, 22 the same burdensome search to come up again with no information
23 other than what your Honor said yesterday, there was ample notice 24 given that there would be ex parte conferences. Your Honor has 25 stated the nature of what those things are and I can't understand

1 why any -- why this kind of approach to the world needs to be 2 taken.

3 Third, they say all documents that constitute, reflect or 4 refer to communications between you and any advisers. This again
5 would require a 72-foot search to see whether there are reports
6 made or notes made, and I can assure the Court that if anything 7 of consequence occurs, it would be reflected in a report I make 8 to my clients which would include my impressions of what the 9 conversations were and, thus, inevitably be subject to the 10 attorney-client privilege.

11 The fourth item, all documents which constitute, reflect, 12 refer to, relate to any draft opinions or memorandum of law for 13 Judge Wolin or any adviser. I can tell you now we didn't draft 14 any. I can tell the Court, as the Court I'm sure is aware, we 15 didn't draft anything for the Court or any of its advisers.

16 And finally, item five, again, identical to what they 17 served yesterday and to what the Court quashed yesterday, all 18 documents that report, tabulate, reflect or refer to the number 19 of hours that we participate or prepare for communications as 20 described here, and other than our time records, well, I don't 21 know what we have other than our time records.

22 But, your Honor, this is exactly the same material that 23 they served on us, that they sand-bagged on us yesterday that they 24 wanted to talk about with your Honor in court yesterday, that you 25 had seen but we never saw, and they just served it all up today

1 without any refinement, without any explanation of what they hope 2 to accomplish with this and in an obvious attempt to defy the 3 Court and to defy the Third Circuit, and I think that 4 over-breadth is clear.

5 The privilege issues are enormous. The inability to 6 accomplish any of this within the time frame that's available is 7 plainly obvious and we would ask that this all be stricken.

8 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Inselbuch. Mr.
9 Neal.

10 MR. NEAL: Thank you, your Honor. What I address will be 11 the five items that Mr. Inselbuch just ran through, which he did 12 summarize accurately. We have served a proposal that we asked 13 five, but only five, law firms for the five categories of 14 information that Mr. Inselbuch describes, so, it's to be served 15 on five firms for five categories of information.

16 Mr. Inselbuch says that the requests now have been 17 broadened to impose on the responding parties the burden of 18 turning over pleadings. That's not accurate. The definition of 19 documents that are on the preceding page explicitly provide that 20 we are not looking for any pleadings, briefs or other documents 21 that have been filed in the court.

22 Mr. Inselbuch makes a point directly that, literally read, 23 the requests would seem to include documents concerning 24 conferences at which all parties were present before the Court, 25 and we would agree to exclude from the requests documents

1 relating to any such occasions, that is, relating to occasions
2 when all parties were present before the Court.

3 The remainder of these, however, go directly to the 4 question of the nature, extent and substance of ex parte
5 communications either with the Court or the Court's advisers, 6 which is obviously directly and specifically relevant to our 7 455(b) arguments.

8 Both Mr. Bernick and Mr. Inselbuch have said it will call 9 for -- might call for privilege documents. We agree there may be 10 privilege documents that shouldn't be produced but we do want 11 those scheduled on a log so that we have a fair opportunity to 12 address whether they are indeed subject to privileges and should 13 not be produced as a result of that.

14 But the information is directly relevant to the 455(b) 15 issue and has been greatly narrowed as far as the number of 16 parties that we are asking to provide this information to us, and 17 as I say, we're prepared to narrow it further consistent with Mr.
18 Inselbuch's suggestion.

19 THE COURT: Well, Mr. Neal, in response to that, when we 20 started this call today, I indicated that perhaps the first line 21 of consideration should be the minutes of the Court that are 22 possessed by the deputy clerk, but we'll pass on.

23 MR. NEAL: And we heard that. Obviously, we would like to 24 take the opportunity to do that but we are working on a tight 25 time frame and, therefore, in the event those minutes don't

1 illuminate all of the things that may be appropriate and relevant 2 to the 455(b) issue, this is the only way that seems available to 3 us to try and get that illumination.

4 THE COURT: All right. I understand.

5 MR. BERNICK: Can I ask a question, your Honor, in the way 6 of clarification --

7 THE COURT: Sure.

8 MR. BERNICK: -- with respect to what Mr. Neal has said.

9 THE COURT: If it's not a reply, it's a clarification, 10 I'll permit it.

11 MR. BERNICK: Question. I'm not going to reply to it, at 12 least at this point.

13 THE COURT: Okay, fine.

14 MR. BERNICK: I look at the definitions in the requests
15 that are directed to Cooney & Conaway, Motley Rice, Caplin &
16 Drysdale, Weitz & Luxenberg and the list I take it to be the ones 17 that you're referring to, it has, when it comes to the requests 18 for production, the definitions, there's the definition of the 19 five asbestos cases. When it comes to the requests for 20 production, though, I don't see anything that limits the requests 21 for production to the five asbestos cases.

22 Is the intent of these requests the five asbestos cases or 23 is the intent to go beyond them?

24 MR. NEAL: No, David. If you look at paragraph five, 25 paragraph five makes it clear that we want communications in the 1 five cases but also any communications in any other case pending

2 before Judge Wolin involving claims arising from exposure to 3 asbestos. So that if, for example, there were communications, ex 4 parte communications concerning Combustion Engineering, our 5 requests are intended to pick those up or at least to elicit a 6 privilege log listing of them and an explanation as to why they 7 aren't being produced.

8 MR. BERNICK: Also pertaining to the advisers?

9 MR. NEAL: Correct.

10 THE COURT: All, right fine. Mr. Tractman, why don't we 11 hear from you.

12 MR. TRACHTMAN: Thank you, your Honor. I did want to 13 address one specific point made by Mr. Bernick earlier that I 14 don't think has really been joined. I think Mr. Bernick, in his 15 arguments yesterday and today, is really inappropriately trying 16 to impose upon discovery his ultimate arguments about the 17 relevant scope of really about the merits of the ultimate motion.
18 What types of activities would constitute an appearance of 19 impropriety or an appearance of possible bias is not necessarily 20 as narrow as he's defining it.

21 He is suggesting that only, for example, only activities 22 directly relevant to the treatment of future claimants could 23 possibly give rise to an appearance of impropriety. That is his 24 argument. We all have arguments both ways about the proper scope 25 of the 455(a) and (b) motions and the ultimate merits and what

1 constitutes grounds for recusal. Discovery is not the place to 2 impose those limitations.

3 There's a wide range of activity in which the advisers 4 that we know they've engaged or we could discover that they 5 engaged that could strengthen the already significant record
6 about appearance of impropriety. One example, Mr. Bernick 7 mentioned fraudulent conveyance and suggested that that was 8 inherently irrelevant, and I -- did I lose your Honor? Your 9 Honor, are you there?

10 THE COURT: I'm here.

11 MR. TRACHTMAN: I'm hearing an echo. I'm sorry. I think 12 he's referring perhaps to the Sealed Air matter, which we're all 13 familiar with that. That is extremely relevant to the interest 14 of future claimants and all tort claimants. Almost anything of 15 any consequence that happened in these cases is of vast 16 importance to asbestos claimants and are matters on which the 17 asbestos claimants and other creditors have dramatically 18 divergent positions. And so, anything in which, of any 19 significance, in which these advisers participated in our view 20 gives rise to an appearance of a conflict of an impropriety 21 because they are advocates at the same time they're being 22 neutral. It doesn't matter whether the specific issue at stake
23 is a treatment of future claimants. So, it's a global comment. I 24 think it's inappropriate to try to limit the inquiry within the 25 five days by narrowly saying that only certain subject matters

1 and activities could be relevant.

2 THE COURT: All right. Anything else? All right. I'd 3 like to hear from Mr. Crammes next please.

4 MR. CRAMES: Miss Parver will respond, your Honor.

5 THE COURT: All right. And Mr. Parker, if you're going to 6 reply, you're on deck.

7 MR. MANCINO: Your Honor, Rich Mancino. Will I have an 8 opportunity to respond very briefly --

9 THE COURT: Absolutely, you're going to be heard from.

10 MR. MANCINO: -- Mr. Bernick's comments?

11 THE COURT: Mr. Mancino, I'm going to give you an 12 opportunity to speak but it's not now.

13 MR. MANCINO: I just didn't want to be overlooked.

14 THE COURT: Mr. Mancino, it would be very difficult to 15 overlook you.

16 MS. PARVER: Your Honor, this is Jane Parver. Good 17 afternoon.

18 THE COURT: Good afternoon.

19 MS. PARVER: Your Honor, both Mr. Orseck and Mr. Neal have 20 represented to the Court that the requests that were delivered 21 today were much narrower than the requests that we did not see 22 yesterday and that they really go to communications with the 23 advisers, what the advisers' role were, were communications with 24 the Court.

25 I can tell you, your Honor, that their representations are

1 really belied by the requests to the futures reps and to Kaye
2 Scholer in this case that we received this morning. There are 11
3 requests, your Honor, and most of them have nothing to do by 4 their express terms with anything to do with any communications
5 with the advisers or with the Court.

6 For example, your Honor, number five with respect to the 7 five asbestos claims cases, Combustion Engineering and G-1 8 Holdings, all documents that reflect, refer to or relate to the 9 establishment of a bar date for filing claims or demands for 10 present or future asbestos-related injuries against the debtor, 11 the estimation or other calculation, quantification or 12 liquidation of claims or demands for asbestos-related injuries or 13 the substantive consolidation of any debtor or any debtor's 14 estate with any other entity or entity's estate.

15 There's no term there tell us about communications with 16 advisers concerning this. Your Honor, we've been at this for 17 several years. For example, with claims estimations, there are 18 just tons and tons of documents between us and our clients that 19 deal with future claims estimations. It has nothing to do with 20 the issues in this case and this is -- I mean, it would take 21 years to put together this stuff to produce, that's an 22 exaggeration, certainly months, to comb the files, and it's got 23 nothing to do with the issues that Mr. Neal and Mr. Orseck have 24 said were what they were trying to discover.

25 So, I really think, your Honor, these requests on the

1 future reps are so overbroad and so irrelevant that they should 2 just be stricken.

3 MR. ORSECK: At the risk of violating the Court's 4 interruption rule, this is Gary Orseck, and I can quickly address 5 that. Your Honor, when I mentioned that there had been an 6 objection this morning to --

7 THE COURT: No, Mr. Orseck. Mr. Orseck, I'm going to give 8 you a reply. I'm going to give you a reply. Let's see if we can 9 keep to the procedure.

10 MR. ORSECK: I just wanted to mention, your Honor, that 11 that's no longer a request from us.

12 THE COURT: Okay.

13 MS. PARVER: I kind of find it interesting, your Honor, 14 because certainly Mr. Orseck didn't bother to notify the futures 15 rep or the future rep's counsel about that.

16 MR. CRAMES: Jane, let me interrupt you. This is Michael 17 Crames, if I may. By e-mail, Mr. Orseck's request number five 18 was being withdrawn. However, the e-mail continues that it's 19 being withdrawn with the understanding that those communications 20 are subsumed in request number three.

21 MS. PARVER: So, they really -- I mean.

22 MR. CRAMES: I mean, to the extent that they would expect 23 a response on five, they still expect a response but in the 24 context of three, so --

25 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

1 MR. CRAMES: I really don't think that the issue has gone
2 away, and I don't want to interrupt Jane further, but when she's 3 finished, I will have one or two very, very brief comments.

4 THE COURT: Are you finished, Miss Parver?

5 MS. PARVER: Just one other example. You know, when 6 asking for documents that refer to statements concerning any 7 decision that you might or might not make in future proceedings, 8 I mean, under Mr. Trachtman broad definition of what they're 9 allowed to look for, this is ridiculous. Practically everything 10 they're asking for is going to be privileged. It's irrelevant.

11 We're going to spend months doing privilege logs. This is 12 not the narrow rifle shot that they represented they were going 13 to do, your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. Mr. Crames, I'll hear you 15 briefly.

16 MR. CRAMES: The only two points I'll make, your Honor, 17 that further reflect the breadth and the scope of these requests, 18 I would just call the Court's attention to number eight, which is 19 another extraordinarily broad request for documents. Frankly, I 20 wouldn't know where we would begin to pull those altogether in 21 any meaningful response.

22 I would also suggest to your Honor that items six, seven,
23 nine and ten and, amusingly, all my resumes since I first applied 24 for a job are called for by item 11, are totally irrelevant in 25 our view.

1 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. Mr. Parker.

2 MR. PARKER: Your Honor, I have nothing to add to what Mr.
3 Orseck was saying before.

4 THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Mancino, you're up.

5 MR. MANCINO: Thank you, your Honor. And I will start by 6 saying that I concur with the comments that Mr. Tractman made 7 concerning the restrictions that Mr. Bernick -- the substantive 8 restrictions that Mr. Bernick would seek to impose on discovery, 9 because those go to the ultimate question that your Honor will 10 need to address with respect to the motions to disqualify, and we 11 don't, on behalf of our clients, we don't believe that the issues 12 that we've raised in our motions, our motion are as limited as 13 Mr. Bernick suggests.

14 We've raised two issues and one relates to the involvement 15 of the advisers in the case as giving rise to an appearance of 16 impropriety, and that is not limited simply to whether or not 17 they have worked on the Grace case or have worked on directly 18 issues related to future asbestos claimants in the Grace case.
19 There the appearance of impropriety that we believe has been 20 created relates to their overall role in the five asbestos cases, 21 not simply in Grace.

22 Secondly, it's clear to me at least that neither Mr.
23 Bernick, nor Mr. Inselbuch, want to produce any documents 24 relating to ex parte communications that they have had with the 25 Court or with the advisers. But there, too, those source of 1 documents and communications are directly relevant not just to 2 the -- we have raised in our motion but also in the issues that 3 were put before the Third Circuit and on which the Third Circuit 4 is seeking a more developed record, so, I would argue, your 5 Honor, that those are acutely relevant and go to the heart of 6 what should be discovered in these matters.

7 With respect to privilege concerns, I think Mr. Neal made 8 the point which I will adopt that we are not seeking to blow 9 appropriately based privileged claims. However, not every 10 communication between Mr. Bernick or his client and the Court or 11 the advisers or between Mr. Inselbuch and the Court and the 12 advisers is privileged.

13 I believe your Honor made that point yesterday, that these 14 bankruptcies are not in their entirety one big settlement 15 discussion, which is what I heard Mr. Bernick suggest might be 16 the case.

17 With respect to work product, if Mr. Bernick or Mr.
18 Inselbuch had shared work product with the Court in an ex parte 19 context, it seems to me they've waived any protections that the 20 work product might otherwise have, but those issues can be 21 addressed once we see what sorts of documents they assert 22 privilege and work product protection on.

23 Finally, with respect to the Combustion Engineering point, 24 I really don't have a dog in the fight on that one, but I do note 25 that in the document request that I believe was submitted by --

1 on behalf of at least some of the respondents, the definition
2 of -- they have a definition of six asbestos bankruptcy cases
3 that does include In Re Combustion Engineering.

4 THE COURT: Mr. Mancino, you can rest assured that 5 whatever the ruling is for the petitioners will be the same for 6 the respondents.

7 MR. MANCINO: Okay. So, your Honor, with that, I will 8 subside and, if appropriate, if a further reply is appropriate, 9 I'd appreciate the opportunity, but if it's not, I'll just keep 10 quiet. Thank you.

11 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. I think the only one 12 that's left that's a participant that hasn't been heard from is 13 Mr. Monk.

14 MR. MONK: Correct, your Honor, last but hopefully not 15 least.

16 THE COURT: I'll hear from you.

17 MR. MONK: Your Honor, I join in most of the comments that 18 were made by the persons on my side of the virtual courtroom 19 here. I do have some specific points that I would like to make 20 drawing your attention, I think to some specifics that might be 21 of assistance.

22 One is the way that movants have defined documents is 23 really their attempt, it seems to me, to narrow the scope of the 24 discovery here to those matters that were pleadings that were 25 filed or other documents filed with the clerk of the bankruptcy

1 court. I would suggest that that should be broadened to include 2 anything that was circulated, correspondence or e-mails that were 3 circulated to counsel so that what they're really seeking is 4 non-public communications to the advisers or the Court, things
5 that were -- because we operate so much by e-mail these days, it 6 seems to me that they have overly included a lot of information 7 they already have in their possession and shortness of time 8 involved here, the waste of everybody's resources to be producing 9 e-mails that were sent to them.

10 As a for instance, even if that wasn't something that was 11 a pleading or a brief or something that was filed with the 12 clerk --

13 MR. NEAL: Your Honor, Steve Neal. I don't mean to 14 interrupt but I agree with that completely. I'm in complete 15 agreement with that.

16 MR. INSELBUCH: Your Honor, Elihu Inselbuch. Can I make a 17 brief point about the document requests that have been noticed 18 for the advisers?

19 THE COURT: Why can't you save that for your reply.

20 MR. INSELBUCH: Very well, sir.

21 THE COURT: Thank you.

22 MR. MONK: Your Honor, with respect to the time frame 23 involved, we did have a discussion about the time frame among 24 counsel this morning. I think the best definition of a relevant 25 time frame would be from the period when Owens Corning, which I

1 believe is the first in the cases that was filed, which would be 2 October 4th of 2000, until October 10th, which was the date that 3 the movants first filed a motion to seek recusal, and anything 4 that -- and that should be the relevant scope of discovery here.

5 I don't believe that any communications that took place
6 after their filing among respondents would certainly be anything 7 other than privilege or really irrelevant, because the subject, 8 as I understand it, is their knowledge and any communications 9 that anybody had prior to the filing of the petitions with the 10 advisers.

11 I guess one further clarification, to the extent that --

12 THE COURT: By the way, let me ask you a question, Mr.
13 Monk, about those dates. Why shouldn't the beginning date be 14 November 27 of 2001, which I believe is the date Judge Becker
15 appointed me to these cases?

16 MR. MONK: Your Honor, my understanding is that Mr.
17 Hamlin, Mr. Hamlin's appointment in the G-1 case was nominated on 18 May the 1st of 2001, and I'm sure, because I know how hard it is 19 to find futures representatives, that the parties were discussing 20 Mr. Hamlin as a prospective futures rep well before then, so, and 21 the point would be that if that was in the press or discussed or 22 communicated with others prior to that point in time, it would 23 have been within their knowledge no matter when this Court was 24 appointed.

25 THE COURT: Okay, fine. You've clarified for the Court

1 because I would have no information on that.

2 MR. MONK: In our effort to coordinate on behalf of the 3 Owens Corning debtors and Mr. Inselbuch's and Mr. Crame's 4 clients, we have included the Combustion Engineering case. We 5 have really, to the extent that that's in our papers, we really 6 have no interest in the Combustion Engineering case. We don't 7 feel as though that forms a part of this record. We understand I 8 think Mr. Bernick's concerns and would be, unless I hear from my 9 colleagues to the contrary, willing to narrow our request to 10 eliminate the Combustion Engineering case from the discussion.

11 THE COURT: All right.

12 MR. MONK: Those are my only comments.

13 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. I'll now go to 14 replies. Mr. Bernick, you were the first one to speak. I'll 15 give you the first reply.

16 MR. BERNICK: Thank you, your Honor. Everybody always 17 says they don't have much to say and always says a little bit 18 more. I don't have anything further to say with respect to the 19 notice and participation point. I think that, obviously, it 20 implicates Combustion Engineering and G-1. I think that the 21 record, I mean the argument on that has been fairly 22 straightforward and clear.

23 I'll only note that as I pace through some of these other 24 requests, and maybe that counsel don't simply realize what the 25 implications of some of these requests are, that you've just got 1 massive problems in that area.

2 For example, when you ask of all communications between 3 you, that is referring to Elizabeth Magner, Motley Rice, John 4 Cooney, Caplin & Drysdale, Weit & Luxenberg, between you and any 5 adviser, well, Francis McGovern acted as a mediator in connection 6 with the Combustion Engineering case. He's an adviser in this 7 case, these cases, but there he was a mediator. All of those 8 firms had massive communications with Professor McGovern in 9 connection with the extensive and continuing efforts of Mr.
10 McGovern to act as a mediator in that case and that, obviously, 11 does implicate the interests of all of their clients, all those 12 many thousands claimants in that case. Just an illustration of 13 as soon as you did tip your toe into the water outside the five 14 case, how problematic this list becomes.

15 With respect to relevance, it's interesting because the 16 arguments that are being made about relevance here are being made 17 as if there were no record and there were no pleadings and there 18 was no Court of Appeals' decision remanding this case. Those 19 are, and if the motion to recuse is kind of like bringing a 20 lawsuit, it's notice pleading, and after that you can kind of 21 conduct a fishing expedition to find out what it is that supports 22 your claims.

23 A motion to recuse is not notice of pleading and it's not 24 the initiation of a lawsuit and it's certainly not the initiation 25 of the lawsuit here. Motion to recuse is an extraordinary

1 request and requires a focused and well-founded claim to begin
2 with. You don't just make a motion to recuse and try to find out 3 what's out there.

4 In this particular case they're not writing on a clean 5 slate. They filed motions to recuse that argued specific points.
6 We know what they were. We know they were based upon conflicts 7 of interest involving Hamlin and Gross and they submitted those 8 theories before the Court of Appeals, and they've never retreated
9 from those, and the Court of Appeals has adopted those theories
10 in connection with the remand, but even USG, which has raised a 11 somewhat different kind of tact in their motion focuses on 12 particular circumstances involving the claim forms where they 13 feel that there were improper contacts with the Court.

14 That record, those allegations are not only required to be 15 specific because of the nature of the remedy sought, but at this 16 point they're locked in stone. We're not going back and 17 reinventing through discovery what the real scope of this inquiry 18 is, to say nothing of engaging in a fishing expedition to find 19 out what else is there because the current theory they have is 20 probably not a very good theory. So, all these arguments are 21 being made, well, this might -- these are all ignore the nature 22 of the remedy that's being sought in the proceedings that have 23 taken place to date.

24 Also on the lines of relevance, Mr. Trachtman says, well, 25 you know, fraudulent conveyance, that doesn't relate to the

1 futures or that relates to the futures, like they can't figure
2 out what relates to the futures. That's another completely 3 far-fetched position. Mr. Trachtman knows better because he's 4 dealt with mass tort bankruptcies before. People know in the 5 case that not everything relates to the futures. In the case of 6 fraudulent conveyance, there is only one issue which is bring 7 more assets into the estate, and in fact, the time that we 8 litigated the fraudulent conveyance claim in the Grace case there 9 was no futures representative because it wasn't necessary to have 10 the futures representative. It's never been necessary to have a 11 futures representative in the Grace case.

12 Further argument with respect to relevance is that, well, 13 gee, it's not proper to just restrict discovery to Grace, and 14 it's true that discovery can be conducted with respect to issues 15 that are involved in the activities in the other cases that may 16 be relevant to Grace. That's not the point. The point is what 17 is the issue, and the issue is conflict with an engagement on 18 behalf of the futures representative.

19 We have never taken the position that they can't conduct 20 discovery into work that's being done by the advisers in 21 connection with other cases that implicate the interests of the 22 futures, but we are taking the position that when you ask Grace 23 or when you ask Kirkland & Ellis for their documents or their 24 information relating to the activities of the advisers relating 25 to the futures, it ought to be confined to the Grace case, and to

1 the extent that my client or I had information about futures 2 representative activity in connection with other cases, that is 3 going to be work product. It's going to be information obtained 4 by the general counsel or by me as a result of the inquiries that 5 we have made that are still protectable.

6 So, when you get to who responds to the discovery, you 7 then have to pay attention to the case in which the discovery is 8 being conducted.

9 Then turning to privilege and settlement, again, no one 10 really addressed the problem of settlement, how settlement is 11 achieved.

12 With respect to privilege, two points. First, the 13 argument has been made that, well, see, all the privilege was 14 waived to the extent it was shared with the Court as part of this 15 ex parte process. That's false. It wasn't waived at all because 16 the communications with the Court were, it took place with the 17 expectation of confidentiality so that there would be no waiver 18 and, obviously, when you're showing up to the Court and you're 19 talking about your theory of the case, of course, it's work 20 product and of course it's privileged information and it's not 21 waived at all. And your Honor may decide that the Court is not 22 going to invoke confidentiality, is not going to insist upon 23 confidentiality, but certainly the Court's determination to go in 24 that direction doesn't constitute a client's waiver of 25 confidentiality.

1 There has been no waiver with respect to any privilege 2 here and the same thing applies to the settlement privilege and 3 the protections that adhere to settlement discussions. They've 4 taken place with the Court under an expectation of 5 confidentiality. There's been no waiver of that expectation, 6 there's been no waiver of those rights. And my final point with 7 respect to this general argument is that there's been kind of a 8 blase reference to the fact that, well, we're not asking for any 9 privileged information but, by the way, you got to log it all.

10 We will never get done with that process. We'll never get 11 done with the arguments that will then take place of the logging 12 process in our lifetime given the scope of these requests.

13 The last thing I'll say is that I have not responded to 14 the particular document requests made of my client or my firm and 15 I've not responded to the document requests that have been made 16 of others that implicate the interests of my client and I want to 17 reserve our right and, depending upon what the Court decides is 18 the appropriate process here, to go through each and every one of 19 these requests that talk about how they're poorly phrased, poorly 20 worded and grossly objectionable, not only on the grounds that 21 I've listed but on other grounds as well.

22 THE COURT: All right. Thank you very kindly. Mr.
23 Orseck, your reply.

24 MR. ORSECK: Well, your Honor, I think I've said what I've 25 had to say about the relevance and the appropriateness of all of

1 our discovery. I think privileged material does not need to be 2 produced. I believe the privileged material that is relevant and 3 responsive can be logged.

4 I want to -- I want to respond to something that Mr. Monk 5 mentioned about the time frame of these document requests. We 6 agree with your Honor that the documents requested by either side 7 become relevant only after this Court's appointment to the five 8 cases. We also believe that documents that were created after 9 the filing of the recusal motion are not relevant except to the 10 extent that there are non-privileged documents created by one 11 party or another that will pertain particularly to the recusal 12 motion itself, so that, for example, if a document is created 13 that will constitutes an ex parte contact after the recusal 14 motion was filed, that could be relevant. But none of these 15 remaining materials that have been sought I think are relevant 16 after that date, and I think I'd like to have Mr. Trachtman, if 17 he cares to, reply to Mr. Bernick on the fraudulent conveyance 18 issue.

19 THE COURT: Mr. Trachtman was next on my reply list. Have 20 you finished, Mr. Orseck?

21 MR. ORSECK: I have. I'd just like to bring to the 22 Court's attention one other matter. I just want to get to it 23 before we forget. This document -- the two document requests the 24 state different dates by which the production is to be made and I 25 want to bring to the Court's attention that I think we have an

1 agreement reached among counsel this morning that with the 2 exception of some narrow categories of materials that both sides
3 will attempt to produce by December 31st, that the remaining -- 4 the deadline for remaining materials will be January 2nd.

5 THE COURT: That was my understanding.

6 MR. ORSECK: Right.

7 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. Mr. Trachtman.

8 MR. TRACHTMAN: Thank you, your Honor. I just want to 9 respond to a couple of specific points. One is Mr. Bernick's 10 reply. There's nothing in the Third Circuit opinion, to my 11 knowledge, that narrows the relevant issues to the extent that 12 Mr. Bernick attempted to in his remarks at the outset and, in 13 particular, with respect to Sealed Air, as Mr. Bernick knows, 14 really as I believe everybody on this call knows, there are 15 issues in that decision, in particular, the methodology used to 16 determine solvency, that are of intense interest to tort 17 claimants. The issues have been argued and briefed in a number 18 of different cases that Mr. Bernick has participated in and, in 19 fact, as your Honor will remember, there were letter briefs by 20 parties in this case arguing the significance or lack of 21 significance of Sealed Air.

22 So, to try to circumscribe as narrowly as he has tried the 23 issues that implicate the issues of tort claimants is misleading 24 and not supported by the Third Circuit's remand.

25 I wanted to just address briefly a couple of points made

1 by Mr. Crammes and Miss Parver with respect to the document
2 requests to their firm and to the futures representatives. One
3 is with respect to the narrowing, I think it's important to note
4 that we did drop number five. Dropping number five, in fact,
5 substantially narrows -- they're trying to dismiss that as if it 6 was not a good faith attempt to trim it back. All we said was 7 number three, number three has to do with communications between 8 them and the advisers, clearly core relevant issues. All we 9 simply said is to the extent among the subject matters that may 10 be embraced by number three are the matters referenced in five.

11 To the extent Miss Parver complained about the millions 12 and millions of documents that those general subject matters 13 might invoke, withdrawing number one dramatically reduces the 14 amount of materials, so, it's misleading to suggest that we 15 haven't made an effort there.

16 I also would like to elaborate, I'm really amazed, Mr.
17 Crammes, I believe, listed number eight as being completely
18 irrelevant and, forgive me, it's a difficult context here if I 19 got that wrong, but I thought Mr. Crammes recited number eight as 20 being totally irrelevant.

21 What number eight gets to is the fact that two of the 22 advisers, the neutral advisers in this case, participated in a 23 series of meetings and conversations with the other futures
24 representatives and the fact is that Mr. McMonagle and Mr. Crammes 25 have participated with Messrs. Gross and Hamlin and different

1 combinations of people over the two years employing the common 2 strategy as they reasonably should as advocates for tort 3 claimants. Those conversations are incredibly relevant and the 4 fact that they didn't turn around and have to deal with each
5 other, with Mr. McMonagle and Mr. Crames still being advocates
6 and Messrs. Gross and Hamlin being purportedly neutrals in this 7 case gives rise to a significant appearance of impropriety and 8 it's correct that we believe that that appearance of impropriety 9 is complete on the existing record, but the Third Circuit has 10 said we want to know all the facts, go back and fill out the 11 facts. And this couldn't be more relevant to what the Third 12 Circuit wants to know about and what's relevant for this motion.

13 MR. CRAMES: Your Honor, this is Michael Crames.

14 THE COURT: No, Mr. Crames. You're going to have to wait.
15 Mr. Trachtman, have you finished?

16 MR. TRACHTMAN: Yes, your Honor.

17 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Crames, you may have your 18 reply.

19 MR. CRAMES: My point which has just been referenced as to 20 the rule that might apply, I simply quote from the e-mail I
21 received which I almost did earlier, but I'll make it complete, 22 that number five is withdrawn, quote, with the understanding that 23 communications regarding the subject matters described in that 24 request are subsumed in request number three, end of quote. I 25 don't know how to read that other than saying whatever might have

1 been provided in terms of number five we now provide in the 2 context of three. Otherwise, I'd be happy to be corrected.

3 Now, as far as number eight is concerned, I don't believe 4 I used the term irrelevant. I used the term, or at least I meant 5 to, that that entails an awful lot of documentation and other 6 communications and aside from the fact that there are privilege 7 issues involved in what may have been imparted to Messrs.
8 McMonagle and Trafelet and the consequences of those meetings, I 9 would just remind the parties, and I'm sure the Court is aware of 10 it, that time records are filed by Mr. McMonagle in Owens 11 Corning, by Dean Trafelet in Armstrong and USG, as well as by my 12 firm, which reflect those meetings, who was there in many 13 instances as set forth in papers filed with the Third Circuit in 14 referencing Mr. McMonagle's time records.

15 And final points, your Honor, they are going to be 16 deposing Messrs. Hamlin and Gross and their participation in 17 those meetings I am sure will be the subject of their 18 examination, so, it seems to me that the subject is indeed going 19 to be covered and indeed has been by virtue of the publicly filed 20 time records. That's all I have to add, your Honor.

21 MS. PARVER: Your, this is Jane Parver. If I could just 22 add two brief things to my partner, Mike Crammes. One, on the 23 issue of what date is the relevant date for starting, I would 24 suggest to your Honor, propose to your Honor that in most 25 instances the relevant date would be, and certainly with respect

1 to anything on the futures rep, the relevant date would be the 2 date of the Court's appointment by Judge Becker.

3 I think the one exception on the issue of notice and what 4 everyone knew about G-1 Holdings and Mr. Hamlin's appointment
5 would be -- that would be the one exception which we propose 6 would start earlier.

7 The only other thing I would say, particularly with 8 respect to the arguments just made by Mr. Trachtman, number eight 9 doesn't just talk about communications with Mr. Hamlin or Mr.
10 Gross and any future rep meetings which are a matter of record.
11 They talk about or any of the other advisers appointed by Judge 12 Wolin.

13 It is a matter of record, your Honor, that Messrs.
14 McGovern and I believe Mr. Gross were appointed from time to time 15 as settlement masters, as mediators in the Owens Corning case and 16 Mr. Trachtman and certainly his partner, Ken Eckstein, 17 participated in a lot of these meetings, and to now talk about 18 any document that refers to any communications, I mean, again, 19 we're going to -- most of these are going to be settlement 20 discussions, as Mr. Trachtman and Mr. Eckstein well know. These 21 were attempts to mediate term sheets. These were attempts to 22 mediate the intercreditor project. They were right there and, 23 yet, we're going to be spending weeks and weeks trying to 24 construct privilege logs and going through files and they can't 25 point to any relevance.

1 Certainly Mr. Trachtman didn't try to defend that last 2 portion of number eight, which talks about or any of the other
3 advisers.

4 THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Neal, anything that you'd like to 5 add in reply?

6 MR. NEAL: Briefly, your Honor. Mr. Bernick's comments on 7 relevance were a little ambiguous as they related to USG. He 8 suggested that people are changing their theories. As I think 9 everybody knows, we have moved under both 455(a) and 455(b), and 10 under 455(b), the issue of ex parte communications are obviously 11 directly relevant. Nobody disputes that, and I gave everybody -- 12 nobody made a secret -- there's no secret that ex parte 13 communications apparently occurred. I mean, nobody is denying 14 that.

15 The opponents to our motion, though, cannot sit 16 simultaneously and say that the evidence that we have brought 17 forth with respect to ex parte communications isn't sufficient to 18 bring about recusal under 455(b) and then say we're not entitled 19 to get any additional evidence. It is squarely an issue. The 20 requests that I addressed this morning, the last five items on 21 the materials that were faxed around, particularly as modified by 22 the comments from Mr. Inselbuch and Mr. Monk, with which I 23 agreed, are designed precisely to get at the issue of ex parte 24 communications and they're designed to get at nothing more, 25 nothing less than that, and they are, therefore, relevant.

1 THE COURT: All right. Thank you very kindly. Mr.
2 Mancino.

3 MR. MANCINO: Thank you, your Honor. With respect to Mr.
4 Bernick's comments, I think his efforts to cabin the relevancy of 5 the discovery here really does fly in the face of the Third 6 Circuit's directive. They did not put the limitations on 7 discovery that he would ask this Court to put on them.

8 Specifically with respect to the fraudulent conveyance
9 case and the settlement in the Sealed Air matter, that does bear 10 relevance to the personal injury asbestos claimants and the 11 future asbestos claimants, and as Mr. Trachtman has pointed out, 12 but I also note that at least as I've read the papers that have 13 been filed in connection with seeking approval of the settlement 14 agreement in that case, the various committees that participated 15 in that settlement and have filed their motion have asked that -- 16 have said that the settlement agreement provides for them to use 17 their best efforts to require that any plan provide that, at 18 best, all and at a minimum a maximized amount of the settlement
19 amount contributed by the Sealed Air defendants be funneled
20 directly to the 52(g) Trust to be created for asbestos claims. I 21 mean, that is a direct tie-in to the interests of asbestos 22 claimants, future asbestos claimants, and to argue that it is 23 not, I think, just is really an attempt to foreclose discovery 24 into a highly relevant area.

25 The other point about time limitations on discovery, I

1 agree that there should be reasonable limitations on how far back 2 you go and how far forward you go and with respect to the 3 requests that we have made relating to our motion or have 4 subscribed to relating to our motion, your Honor, the time 5 limitation should go a little bit beyond the filing of the 6 recusal motion so as to capture any ex parte communications with 7 Mr. Hamlin or Mr. Gross or with your Honor that may have taken 8 place with respect to the appointment of a futures representative 9 in the W.R. Grace case.

10 And then finally, you know, I think Mr. Bernick has had 11 ample opportunity to address the Court about his objections, and 12 while I enjoy listening to him, I think that he's had his 13 opportunity to voice his objections with respect to the document 14 requests that have been propounded and that, your Honor, we all 15 need to move forward and get moving on discovery and just simply 16 engaging in further elaborate discussion because Mr. Bernick 17 failed to get his all his objections in in his other 18 opportunities to speak is I think counterproductive.

19 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. Let's see. How about --

20 MR. MONK: Charles Monk. I think I'm the only one that 21 hasn't replied.

22 MR. INSELBUCH: Elihu Inselbuch, too.

23 THE COURT: No, No. Mr. Monk is going first and then you 24 are going to wind up, Mr. Inselbuch, because you're probably 25 senior in age.

1 MR. INSELBUCH: Thank you.

2 MR. MONK: Your Honor, I just would like to make the point
3 that, and this I think in part goes to what Mr. Bernick said, we 4 heard the other side arguing how they had narrowed the discovery
5 requests. I would draw your attention to page ten of the fax, 6 the third request that was addressed to us which asks for all 7 documents and, as I understand it, I think there seems to be some 8 sense of the concept of limiting the definition of documents to 9 those things that are essentially non-public communications, if I 10 can describe it that way, being not something that was filed with 11 the court or circulated to counsel, that reflect, refer to or 12 relate to, which are very broad verbs, and then the subject that 13 they, of those verbs, the object of those verbs is this recusal 14 motion, and the petitions for writ, which essentially means 15 anything at all. It seems to be a completely overbroad request.
16 So, even though they've only addressed three requests to us, 17 they've essentially asked for any document that might have 18 anything to do with everything before the Court that hasn't 19 already been turned over to them in some way, and I don't think 20 that anywhere comes close to narrowing anything as the Court had 21 requested. That's my only additional comment, your Honor.

22 THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Inselbuch.

23 MR. INSELBUCH: Your Honor, I would like to go back to 24 first principles for a moment. Discovery is made available under 25 the Federal Rules under Rule 26. It is not without limitation.

1 There are general limitations to discovery. It's not just 2 anything that anybody can argue is relevant, but a court, ruling 3 on discovery, has to always balance the burden or the expanse of 4 the proposed discovery and whether or not weighs the likely 5 benefit taking into account the needs of the case, etc. I'm 6 reading from Rule 26(b)(2).

7 With that that mind, the Court, and at least the District
8 Court here, has to take into consideration its own understanding 9 of what the issues are in front of it, its own understanding of 10 the history of the case, and, most importantly, the timetable
11 that has been imposed by the Third Circuit. The Third Circuit 12 has said get this all done, this discovery, get it all done 13 basically in two weeks.

14 Now, that can't mean that we pretend here that discovery 15 is as if it were beginning in some huge anti-trust case that 16 would have seven or eight years before it would come to trial, if 17 ever. The court is obligated to tool discovery here, weighing in 18 mind the burdens and the benefits of any potential discovery and, 19 in particular, the ability to get it done sensibly within the 20 time frame that's permitted.

21 Now, some of the advocates have argued about what limits, 22 if any, or unlimits, limits not set by the Third Circuit. The 23 Third Circuit provided four potential areas where it suggested 24 discovery might shed light. That's at page 26 of their Opinion, 25 and I would suggest to the Court that most of what has been

1 talked about today doesn't fall into any of these categories
2 unless you would say everything that anybody did in this case 3 falls into the first category, which would be the full extent of 4 the consultants' activities, because the second category, Messrs.
5 Gross and Hamlin's activities in G-1 Holdings, doesn't call for 6 discovery from any of the other parties in these other 7 bankruptcies.

8 The time limits of the petitions for Mandamus, the third 9 category, that has to do with our discovery, not their discovery; 10 and the fourth, the extent to which recusal, if warranted in one, 11 must be held to extend to the others, I don't see how any of this 12 discovery seeks information on the point.

13 Finally, there's nothing in this Opinion that talks about 14 Mr. Neal and his demands to have access to any and all records, 15 however difficult it might be to find them, however difficult it 16 might be to prove the privileged from the unprivileged that have 17 to do with ex parte conversations; that there is no number five 18 that says ex parte conversations with the Court, and I would 19 suggest to the Court in this context that the Court has an 20 obligation to tailor these discovery demands in a way that will 21 make them meaningful and that will get produced for the Court the 22 discovery record that will be relevant to the Court, this Court, 23 in deciding these motions in the first instance, and that's what 24 this Court, I submit with great respect, should be trying to 25 craft here.

1 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Inselbuch.

2 MR. INSELBUCH: May I make one comment about the discovery 3 directed to the advisers, simply because no one has been heard to 4 speak about that, and I would implore the Court to pay particular 5 attention there, to read one example of the demand number 22 6 calls for all documents that constitute, reflect or refer to 7 communications between you and any party.

8 Now, I can't imagine how that wouldn't just mean they 9 should deliver their file cabinets and I would ask the Court to 10 -- I don't speak to the advisers -- I would ask the Court to pay 11 careful attention to the demands that have been made on the 12 advisers given the time frame within which they have to produce 13 documents as well.

14 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Inselbuch. I think 15 I've afforded everybody an opportunity to be heard, everybody an 16 opportunity to reply. My court reporter is starting to 17 demonstrate fatigue because we've been at this now for 18 approximately two hours.

19 What I'm going to do is I'm going to conclude this 20 telephone call at this time and we will be in recess until 21 quarter to two. Excuse me one second.

22 Okay. I'm sorry to have gone off the record. We were 23 trying to consider procedural matters. Everybody still there?
24 All right. We'd gone off the record to try to consider 25 procedural matters as to not wanting to lose everybody who is on 1 this telephone call.

2 What we suggest is that the Court is going to disengage
3 this telephone call only for the Court until quarter to two, 4 because I have to give my reporter an opportunity to rest and 5 reload. At quarter to two, the Court will dial back in and we'll 6 then review the discovery and order what discovery shall be 7 granted and what shall be denied.

8 Because of the time that this call has taken and by the 9 time that the Court finishes, I don't think we're going to have 10 time to get our Case Management Order out today that reflects the 11 views of the Court but the views of the Court that are given 12 today are in fact the Order of the Court and the Case Management 13 Order that will be put out on Friday is only reflective of what 14 we ordered here today, so, nobody should be sitting on their 15 hands saying, oh, we didn't get the written order. This Order 16 that will be given orally is the Order of the Court.

17 Also, I want you to understand that the approval of any 18 requests for discovery today is without prejudice to any 19 objection to a particular request based upon privilege. Also, 20 the Court will use the date for production of documents November 21 27, 2001 through the argument in the Circuit Court of Appeals on 22 December 12, other than Hamlin's participation in G-1, you may 23 use an earlier date.

24 We're now going to hang up and we'll be back in about --

25 MR. BERNICK: Your Honor, before you hang up, this is

1 David Bernick and I just had one housekeeping matter to point out 2 for the record before your Honor rules, that is, that the 3 movants' requests for discovery that was filed by Owens Corning, 4 Grace would join in that request except that I noted that 5 although they include D.K. Acquisition in the request, they don't 6 include counsel for D.K. Acquisition and Grace would seek that 7 same discovery or the same scope of discovery with respect to the 8 Willkie, Farr firm which apparently represented D.K. Acquisition.

9 THE COURT: I'll be prepared to deal with that at quarter 10 to two. All right. Court will be in recess until quarter to 11 two.

12 (A recess is taken.)

13 THE COURT: Is everybody present that was a participant 14 earlier?

15 MR. ORSECK: Yes, your Honor.

16 MR. BERNICK: Yes, your Honor.

17 MR. MONK: Your Honor, this is Charles Monk. I wanted to 18 inform you that we were able to locate Judge Dreier, who has 19 joined into the call so he could hear the Court's advice 20 regarding the scope of discovery. We have not been able to 21 locate, although we have left messages for, former judges Keefe 22 and Hamlin.

23 MR. SIEGEL: Your Honor, this is Arnold Siegel at the 24 Robbins, Russell firm. I just got a call from a lawyer 25 representing Judge Hamlin and left him the call-in number and the 1 code so he could dial in.

2 THE COURT: Okay, fine. The Court has for the past two 3 hours patiently listened to arguments as to the proposed document 4 production and given each participant the opportunity to speak 5 affirmatively as well as to reply.

6 It is the Opinion of the Court that the demands for 7 production of documents far exceed the spirit and the letter of 8 the Opinion issued by the Court of Appeals on December 18. The 9 focus of that Opinion was the role of the advisers and the 10 structural conflict that was argued before them. Their decision 11 to amplify the evidentiary record was in regard to that 12 structural conflict, as well as the ex parte communications that 13 occurred with the District Court.

14 The arguments I have heard today are far beyond the scope 15 of what was intended by the Court of Appeals and particularly 16 with regard to the time frame allotted by the Court of Appeals.
17 Indeed, this Court is sure that the Court of Appeals would be 18 amazed at the submissions before the Court today.

19 The distance between the positions of counsel and the 20 opinion of the Court of Appeals requires this Court to strike a 21 necessary balance between those two positions. The Court will 22 not respond to the particular arguments as to whether they 23 possess merit or demerit, as the case may be. The primary issue
24 for the Court is the alleged conflict in regard to the engagement 25 of the advisers as it relates to the interest of future

1 claimants.

2 I agree with those parties that the requested demand for 3 production is overly broad and that, as Mr. Inselbuch said, the 4 burdens of discovery far outweigh the benefits to be received if 5 all of the discovery requested were to be granted. However, 6 notwithstanding the arguments of the opponents with regard to the 7 requested discovery, the Court is strongly inclined to grant as 8 much access to evidence as it can in good conscience while 9 remaining consistent with the tenor of the mandate of the Court
10 of Appeals and adhering to the extremely abbreviated time period 11 dictated by the Order of that Court.

12 That being said, the Ruling of the Court will be as 13 follows:

14 The first document request was addressed to Owens Corning
15 and to Saul Ewing, LLP. That request is denied in toto.

16 The next document request was addressed to W.R. Grace and 17 Kirkland & Ellis. Now, turning over to page four of that 18 document request, question number one, it says all documents that 19 reflect, refer to or relate to any communication concerning, and 20 I'm granting it only as to III, any of the five asbestos cases
21 between or among you and any of the following individuals: Judge 22 Alfred Wolin, David Gross, C. Judson Hamlin, William Dreier, John 23 E. Keefe, Sr., and Francis McGovern. It is denied as to G-1 24 Holdings and Combustion Engineering.

25 Number two, I am granting that request except for G-1

1 Holdings. So, the initial "I" is denied.

2 Question number three, I'm going to grant that request as 3 follows, all documents that reflect, refer to or relate to any 4 draft opinions or memoranda of law transmitted by you to any of 5 the following individuals: Judge Alfred Wolin, David R. Gross, 6 C. Judson Hamlin, William A. Dreier, John E. Keefe, Sr., and 7 Francis McGovern, in regard to the five jointly administered 8 cases only.

9 Number four is denied.

10 Number five I'm going to grant in this regard: With 11 respect to the five asbestos cases, eliminating G-1 Holdings, any 12 documents that reflect, refer to or relate to any ex parte 13 communication, and then I'm going to add after that "with the 14 District Court concerning the subjects that are set forth in A, B 15 and C".

16 Number six is denied.

17 Moving on is the document request to David Gross, C.
18 Judson Hamlin, William Dreier, John E. Keefe, Sr., and Francis 19 McGovern. I am now turning over to page five. Number one is 20 granted except for Combustion Engineering. I'm denying that 21 request as to Combustion Engineering.

22 Number two is granted.

23 Number three shall read as follows: "All complete 24 unredacted time and billing records in connection with activities 25 performed by you in any of the five asbestos cases other than

1 that which has already been filed by the Court."

2 Excuse me one second. I'm putting you on hold. Hello.
3 Everybody back? I forgot to eliminate Combustion Engineering
4 there. I'm eliminating Combustion Engineering.

5 Number four, I'm granting that but I'm eliminating 6 Combustion Engineering.

7 Number five I am granting in its entirety.

8 Number six is denied.

9 Number seven is the denied.

10 Number eight is denied.

11 Number nine -- excuse me one second. I've got to put you 12 on hold.

13 Everybody back? I changed my ruling on six. Six shall 14 read that refers to Leticia Chambers and experts. It will read 15 as follows, I am granting it as to all documents that reflect, 16 refer to or relate to the engagement of Dr. Leticia Chambers in 17 regard to the five jointly administered asbestos cases.

18 Number seven is denied.

19 Number eight is denied.

20 Number nine is granted.

21 Number ten is granted except for Combustion Engineering.

22 Number 11 is granted.

23 Number 12 is granted.

24 Number 13 is denied.

25 Number 14 is granted.

1 Number 15 --

2 MR. BERNICK: I'm sorry. With respect to 14, is that any 3 bankruptcy case? It's not just the five?

4 THE COURT: No. You're correct. It's the five 5 administered cases. It's limited to those, the five jointly 6 administered cases. Thank you.

7 Number 15 is granted.

8 Number 16 is granted except for Combustion Engineering.

9 Number 17 is denied.

10 Number 18 is denied.

11 Number 19 is denied.

12 Number 20 is denied.

13 Number 21 is denied.

14 Number 22 is denied.

15 Number 23 is granted.

16 I'm now moving on to the document requests addressed to 17 McMonagle, Trafelet and Kaye Scholer. They are all denied.

18 The requests for production of documents to Cooney & 19 Conaway, Motley Rice, Caplin & Drysdale, Weitz & Luxenberg and 20 Elizabeth Magner are denied in their totality.

21 I'm now moving to the Saul Ewing requests for document 22 production, and I'm moving to page two where it indicates the 23 movant entities that Owens Corning seeks document production 24 from.

25 It is granted as to Kensington International, Limited,

1 Springfield Associates, LLC, Elliott Management Corporation,
2 Elliott Associates, LP, Elliott International, LP, and Mark
3 Brodsky.

4 It is denied as to D.K. Acquisition Partners, Fernwood 5 Associates, denied as to Deutsche Bank Trust Company Americas and 6 denied as to USG Corp.

7 It is further denied as to the Official Committee for 8 Unsecured Creditors in the Owens Corning bankruptcy proceeding.

9 It is denied as to the Official Committee for Unsecured
10 Creditors in the W.R. Grace bankruptcy proceeding.

11 It is also denied as to the Official Committee of 12 Unsecured Creditors in the USG Corporate bankruptcy proceeding In 13 Re Armstrong World Industries, Inc.

14 It is granted as to certain creditors in the Owens Corning 15 bankruptcy proceeding.

16 It is granted as to Credit Suisse First Boston as agent 17 for the bank group.

18 It is granted as to J.P. Morgan Chase.

19 It is granted as to Kramer, Levin, Naftalis & Frankel.

20 It is granted as to Davis Polk & Wardwell.

21 And it is granted as to Stroock, Stroock & Lavan.

22 Now, going on to documents requested. Number one.

23 MR. BERNICK: Excuse me, your Honor. I hate to interrupt.
24 I just wanted to point out --

25 THE COURT: Yes. Go ahead please.

1 MR. BERNICK: -- we wanted to supplement this to include
2 Mr. Mancino's firm or his client because, otherwise, we have no 3 way of getting the notice issued with respect to the motion of 4 Grace.

5 MR. MANCINO: I understood your Honor had just denied
6 discovery.

7 MR. BERNICK: It may very well have been that he did but 8 because that was not set out in writing here but, rather, it was 9 set out by me orally before we broke.

10 THE COURT: But I did deny it as to D.K. Acquisition
11 Partners, Fernwood Associates, Deutsche Bank Trust Company
12 Americas. Aren't those Mr. Mancino's clients?

13 MR. BERNICK: Yes.

14 MR. MANCINO: Yes, they are, your Honor.

15 MR. BERNICK: But that just underscores the importance of 16 our request then for discovery from Mr. Mancino's firm.

17 THE COURT: Well, you haven't convinced me at this point.
18 I'll give you the opportunity at some time to communicate with 19 the Court on notice to all counsel, but as of now the answer is 20 no.

21 All right. As to the documents requested, number one is 22 granted.

23 Number two is granted. Number three is granted. Number 24 four is granted. Number five is granted. Number six is granted.

25 Number seven is granted. Number eight is granted. Number

1 nine is granted. Number 10 is granted.

2 Number 11 is granted. Number 12 is granted. Number 13 is 3 granted.

4 Number 14 is denied. Number 15 is granted. Number 16 is 5 denied.

6 I believe I've taken care of all of the demands for 7 production of documents.

8 We're going to cease the phone call at this time. This is 9 the order of the Court. It will be reduced further to a writing 10 to be issued by the Court on Friday next.

11 MR. BERNICK: Your Honor, just for point of 12 clarification, I don't believe that your Honor has addressed any 13 of the instruction, that is, that there were representations this 14 morning that no privileged documents were called for and, yet, I 15 believe that there were further representations that there's the 16 expectation that they'll all be logged.

17 The logging requirement and the request for privileged 18 documents is of tremendous consequence given the time frame here.
19 The same would apply to materials reflecting the conflict of 20 settlement discussions which we would argue are privileged.

21 What is your Honor's determination with regard to 22 privileged and settlement documents information?

23 THE COURT: I would call upon the parties to hold a 24 discussion between themselves out of the presence of the Court 25 wherein perhaps they could in a serious list list the number of 1 documents without the production of the document that someone 2 could review to see if it's really relevant to what the discovery

3 necessary is to fulfill the mandate to the Court of Appeals.

4 MR. BERNICK: Are you suggesting that we should kind of 5 work this out informally?

6 THE COURT: That's correct.

7 MR. BERNICK: I think we should try to do that on the 8 Friday call.

9 THE COURT: Okay.

10 THE COURT: Steve Neal, your Honor. Just for 11 clarification, I do persist in saying that if we're not able to 12 work it out, the parties should log any documents that are being 13 withheld on privilege grounds so that --

14 THE COURT: Well, you know, Mr. Neal, I tried to send a 15 message to everybody and the message was, as Mr. Inselbuch said, 16 you have to balance the burden of discovery against the benefit 17 and all privileges are going to be preserved.

18 JUDGE DREIER: Before you hang up, this is Judge Dreier.
19 There were references to 23 paragraphs, certain items granted, 20 certain items denied. I don't know, can't speak for the other 21 members of the committee, but I don't have copies of the amended 22 requests that relate to these so these paragraphs will mean 23 anything and I have today and tomorrow basically to go through --

24 THE COURT: I'll handle that, Judge Dreier. Mr. Monk, 25 will you fax that to him forthwith?

1 MR. GOLDSTEIN: And to Saiber, Schlesinger.

2 THE COURT: Okay, fine.

3 MR. MONK: Thank you. We'll be happy to do so. Let me
4 just give my telephone number to the people that I am to fax it
5 to and if you'll call me after this call is over, I'll be happy 6 to arrange that.

7 THE COURT: What was the number?

8 MR. MONK: 410-332-8668.

9 JUDGE DREIER: Who am I speaking to?

10 MR. MONK: Charles Monk, counsel for Owens Corning .

11 THE COURT: All right.

12 MR. BERNICK: Your Honor --

13 THE COURT: Who is this?

14 MR. BERNICK: This is David Bernick and I'm sorry to be -- 15 I was reading off the -- I'm sorry. Never mind.

16 THE COURT: All right. I want to wish everybody a happy 17 holiday, whatever your persuasion. I thank you for your 18 participation in this telephone call and we'll look to the 19 resolution of these matters.

20 THE COURT: Thank you. The demands for admissions 21 submitted by the parties are hereby made part of the record.

22 (Whereupon the telephone conference call is adjourned.)
